Title Panel attrition among the 1990-1992 Panel respondents

Technical Report Number: nes010163

Date: November 3, 1994

Dataset(s): 1990-1992 Panel

Abstract

This report is a set of tables which describe the correlates of the likelihood of a 1990 NES respondent being successfully reinterviewed two years later. Five sets of variables are examined: demographic characteristics of the respondents; characteristics of the respondents that would affect their recontactability; indicators of the respondent's reluctance to be interviewed; political interest, information, and engagement; and political opinions and preferences. All variables are measured in 1990.
